It would be better if you just focused on the facts. This does not do anything to address the issue: "Thus it's perhaps not surprising that Cook et al. (2013) and its 97% consensus result have been the subject of extensive denial among the usual climate contrarian suspects. As apposed to the 100% entirely untested "natural" products you think are safer, but which have seen a rapid rise in peanut/general-nut allergies, siliacs disease (gluten allergy), possible problems with eating too much plant matter containing natural estrogen, and who the hell knows what else is out there that hasn't either popped up as a serious problem yet, or been correctly ...
